LONDON BANKING FIRM IS FORCED TO SUSPEND. Failure Believed to Be Result of Large Operations in Grand Trunk by Arthur M. Grenfell.

London, June 7.—Chaplin, Milne, Grenfell & Co., Limited, merchants and bankers, of 6 Princes Street, suspended yesterday the accounts of their business in 1899 to take over the business of Morton, Chaplin & Co. (formerly Morton, Rose & Co.). Its authorized capital is $1,000,000. The firm conducted general and mercantile banking and a company for promoting business. The directors include Ernest Chaplin, G. Grenfell Milne and R. W. Skipwith.

The failure is believed to be the result of large operations in Grand Trunk by Arthur M. Grenfell, who formerly was a member of the firm. Earl Grey, whose daughter was Grenfell's first wife, is reported among the heavy losers.

The firm recently issued a notice that Grenfell had not been connected there with since February 17.

At least one of the directors is involved, with those of the Canadian Agency, Limited, controlled by Grenfell, and who are now endeavoring to purchase a controlling interest in the Grand Trunk Railway. When those securities were taken over, large sums of money were taken over by a group of financial houses in order to protect the many stock exchange firms involved.

The bank is believed, however, to be entirely solvent. The total of the deposits is understood to have been greatly diminished in the past month, and the total of the assets is believed to be about $1,250,000.

Further failures in connection with this one are not expected.

Members of Grenfell's family are coming to his assistance in the settlement of his affairs.

Mr. Appleton is a graduate of Harvard class of '75, and is a member of the board of directors of the University. He belongs to the Knickerbocker and other leading clubs in New York and to the Somerset Club in Boston.

Of Interest to Every Woman Edited by Martha Westover

AMERICAN WOMEN AND LITERARY FOLK

Are Engaging Lots of Attention in London by Manifest Activities and Interests.

By this time, as you may have guessed, women are being treated with more courtesy in England, and, therefore, suffragettes generally are using amiable policies. Yet the King refuses to grant Mrs. Pankhurst an audience or to recognize them in any way.

But His Majesty's attitude really is interesting the crusaderesses very little. The "Famous Men and Women From B. C. 7000 to A. D. 1914" costume dinner, organized by the Actress-Franchisers and Women Writer Suffragettes is on the carpet. This is to be given at the Hotel Cecil.

Mrs. Isabel Zangwill will be seen as Fanny Burney, Miss Evelyn Sharp as Mrs. Browning, Miss Hertha Ayrton as Deborah, Miss Edith Olive as the Queen of Sheba, Mrs. Archibald Little as the Dowager Empress of China and Lady Muir Mackenzie as Semiramis.

"Frank Danby" (Mrs. Julia Frankau), the famous authoress of "The Clover," is lying seriously ill at Hildhead. Mrs. Frankau's career has been somewhat meteoric. From distant journalism she went to novel writing, which she abandoned to study engraving, and after ten years she devoted to novel writing again. She is the author of a number of novels, and a merchant and she has one son and a daughter.

Speaking of authors reminds me that Max Pemberton is back in London again, after a holiday in Berlin. His attitude toward the German capital is that of "a man who has been there, and he declares he is bored to death in the police-hidden city."

Mrs. Pethick Lawrence has gone to Florence to stay with Olive Schreiner, the authoress, who is very ill. Mrs. Lawrence writes me that they are very fond of each other, and that she had a serious attack of illness during the last year. But she is very brave and cannot bear any mention of her troublesome health. MURHAM.

Rhubarb Preserves. (By Request.) The important points to be observed in making rhubarb to have hot syrup and airtight jars; to fill jars to overflowing and seal immediately. Jars should be sealed and tested before using. These canners greatly simplify the work.

Peel, cut and wash the rhubarb and pack it in jars very compactly. Make a syrup by boiling one-half pint of boiling water to one pound of sugar, to gauge the amount required allow one-quarter of a pint of boiling water to one-half a pound of sugar per jar. When the syrup is ready, pour it into the boiling point and carefully fill the jars. Stand the jars in a canner or on bonnets (pieces from the tops of grocery boxes) should be submerged in water up to the shoulders of the jars. Cover the boiler and cook until tender. Then take from the canner or boiler, and more syrup till overflowing, cover and seal immediately.

Preserved rhubarb requires an allowance of a pound and a half of sugar to each pound of fruit. The rhubarb should be submerged in the syrup until tender, a little at a time, until the jars are full. When all are done the syrup should be brought to a boiling point, the jars filled and sealed.

SOME LOVELY NEW MODES FOR GIRLS. A Spring Coat in Mohair Worn With a Charming Hat—Frocks for 1p to 16.

With children's clothes, as with all others, there is a vast difference between their appearance when shown on a wax figure and when actually worn. One little maid, about five years old, trotting about, delightedly watching the evolutions of a big toy balloon, which she was manipulating, proved her simple pattern of pale blue mohair, with a sweet little hat to match, was a perfect beauty to perfection.

Model Frocks. All the frocks are exclusive models, dainty to a degree. Two small girls of about ten years will be wearing charming frocks of white, pink, blue and lace, with Nattie blue sashes. A tall and lovely dark-haired girl is in a delightful Kate Greenway gown of pale blue silk powdered with tiny flower clusters, the straight plain skirt bordered with a narrow ruche, and the rather high-waisted bodice finished with a lace collar.

For Tall Girls. For a girl of sixteen there is a white silk frock printed with a beautiful design, with a tunic and bodice of white, and a narrow sash of blue. The blue outlining the V. The bodice has a high collar and a shawl neck of the same age and height. It was displayed in a lovely frock of shell pink brocade crepe, the skirt having a double tulle, with a sash, blue and white, and a high collar, and a shawl neck of the same age and height.

Smart and Seemingly. A charming jumper suit for a bonnie girl of some ten years has a skirt of plain white brocade lined with a long white jumper brought over the hand of the same, with double collar, buttoned blue sash, and a navy blue sailor hat of Panama with navy blue ribbon. Another lovely and useful frock of dark blue is very simply made, with a navy blue sailor hat, and a navy blue sailor hat.

Drop and Brights Disease. Nearly everybody knows that when the dropsy comes so fast in Bright's Disease that the patient has to be treated by the case is hopeless so far as the old treatment is concerned. It is a fact that a case of this kind can be cured by the use of the new treatment, and the patient can be cured by the use of the new treatment, and the patient can be cured by the use of the new treatment.

VIRGINIAN MENTIONED FOR INDIVIDUAL BRAVERY

Twenty-Two-Year-Old News Ferry Man Took Part in Occupation of Vera Cruz.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) Danville, Va., June 7.—Reports of individual bravery during the occupation of Vera Cruz made public by the Navy Department, containing mention of Solomon Clay, a twenty-two-year-old youth of News Ferry, Halifax County, who was shot in the forearm during the series of engagements. Clay ran away from his home, near South Boston, four years ago, and for a long time his mother did not know where he had gone. He went to Richmond, where he enlisted, and was drafted on the Vermont. A year ago he made his first visit home on leave, and found that his mother had married again. He was employed on a farm before he ran away, but the spirit of adventure called him despite parental warnings.

While on the coast of the creek, employed in a restaurant, followed swiftly. The chauffeur of the car was acquitted by the jury. He was charged with aiding in the girl's abduction.
